Study Habits for Successful Students

- Make a revision timetable. Schedule specific times throughout the week for revision and stick to the plan. This will provide you with the structure you need for effective studying.
- Start studying on time and when planned. If you delay your revision and do not give yourself enough time you will struggle to cover everything you need to. This will leave you under pressure and unable to perform to the best of your ability. Rushed revision will leave you unprepared and possibly anxious.
- Try to study at the same times each day and at a time that works best for you. This establishes a routine that becomes a regular part of your day.
- Set specific goals for study times. Be very clear in your mind what you want to accomplish during your revision times. Focus and concentrate on one thing at a time and break large tasks into a series of smaller tasks. Goals will help you stay focussed.
- Remember to take breaks and try not to do too much studying at one time. If you do, you will tire and your studying will not be effective. Instead, space your revision over shorter periods of time, taking short breaks to restore your mental energy.
- Make sure you are not tired or hungry when you study. Otherwise, you won't have the energy you need to concentrate.
- Study in a quiet place that is free from distractions and interruptions. Find or create a quiet place where you can revise alone, a space designated for studying alone. Remove all distractions. Turn off your phone, the TV and video games. Listening to music may also be a distraction.
- Make good revision notes. Reviewing your class notes and making study notes can really help. You can use bullet points, numbers, mind maps, drawings and colour.
- Make use of the weekends. Yes, weekends should be time for rest but it is sensible to dedicate some time to revision too. Remember, at the weekend you have more free time than during the busy school week.
- Work hard at the subjects you find difficult. Do not give up on a subject just because you find it challenging. Work hard at it and you will see improvements.
- Don't be afraid to ask for help. Ask your teacher or classmate for help if you do not understand something or you need clarification. Don't waste time or fool yourself. Revision needs to be thorough, committed and focussed. Don't kid yourself by skimming quickly through your notes. If you want the best result you can get you need to put in the work.

Study Techniques

Once you have decided the subject you are going to study, there are various ways to help you learn.

- It is important to follow your learning list carefully.
- Go through your notes thoroughly and make sure you understand them.
- Summarise your notes – use headings, subheadings, bullet points, short phrases and key words. Keep it concise but do not leave out important detail.
- Use a highlighter or underline with red pen to make the key words or phrases stand out.
- Create a spider diagram or mind map to summarise your work.
- You may like to use cue cards or post-its.
- You may wish to use rhymes or mnemonics to help you remember things. (Never Eat Shredded Wheat can be used to remember the points of the compass North, South, East and West.)
- Using colour, diagrams and drawings can also help.
- Test yourself as you go along by trying to rewrite what you have learned or ask someone to test you by asking you questions.
- Leave enough time to cover all the topics on your learning list, ticking off each topic once you have completed it.

Remember - it is important to find a technique that works best for you. Not everyone learns in the same way.

What happens if you come across something in your notes that you do not understand?

- Note it down or put a post-it in your book to indicate the topic you find difficult.
- You may wish to ask a parent/guardian, sibling or friend to explain it while you are at home.
- Make a point of speaking to your subject teacher as soon as possible. Remember to ask at an appropriate time and in an appropriate way but never be afraid to ask for help.
